

A Short Note on Treaties

The first paragraph makes a short and plain statement about treaties.

The second paragraph adds a little more detail about customary international law and the way that it slowly develops over time.

The third paragraph closes the page with three lines of ordinary running text that a parser should be able to join back into a single block without any trouble at all.